

April 2018

District 1 is home to the Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport \(FXE\) and FXE is addressing the issue regarding the aviation workforce skills gap. There is a growing demand for workers in the aviation industry and the Executive Airport is home to a variety of businesses working hard to train a talented workforce.

Over the next 20 years, statistics show that globally there is a need and opportunity for people to pursue aviation careers:

- Almost 40,000 new airplanes will be built in the next 20 years
- Highly trained workforce will be needed – over 2,000,000 new aviation personnel
- 617,000 new pilots will be needed
- 670,000 new technicians will be needed
- 814,000 new cabin crew members will be needed

Students interested in careers in aviation can learn more from Broward College \(BC\). BC has a comprehensive program in a number of areas, which can provide students with information they can use to pursue aviation training.

On Monday, April 23, I am hosting an Aviation Career Night for high school students interested in aviation careers at FXE in partnership with Broward College and Banyan Air. The event flyer is below. Please contact my office if you would like more information or your high school student is interested in attending!

Sincerely,
